Use of Art to Understand Child Development in Play Therapy

Thursday, October 26, 2017
6 CE/Clock Hours

This workshop will review several theories of child graphic developmental theories and look at how these can reflect cognitive, social and emotional milestones for children in play therapy. Clinical evaluation of children using the "Art Experience" will be experientially explored. Case examples and art techniques for various age groups/clinical populations will be presented and discussed. Additionally, this workshop will discuss principles of play therapy and how to integrate art in play therapy.

Art as a Neurosequential Approach for Developmental Trauma Treatment in Play Therapy

Friday, October 27, 2017

6 CE/Clock Hours

This workshop will include the work of Bruce Perry, M.D., PhD on Neurosequential therapy theory with Bessel Van Der Kolk's concept of Developmental Trauma. Includes ethical and clinical guidelines of art treatment as used by the play therapist. Focus will be on sexually traumatized children but other populations will be presented. Appropriate art-based techniques will be demonstrated in both didactic and experiential formats. Case histories and client artwork will be presented. This workshop provides an outstanding foundation for the clinical application of art interventions in play therapy.
